STUDENTS ELECT CAMPUS LEADERS TODAY

Candidates for Students' Society

Ralph A. Cohen

B.C.L. 1

The primary purpose of the University at this moment is to produce men and women capable of winning the war and constructing a just peace.

Program:

1—General Advisory Board.
2—Military Training.
3—Clubs, Organizations and Societies.
4—Cooperative Book Store.
6—Cafeteria.
7—Support of the War Effort.

Now:

1—General Advisory Board

I propose to set up a General Advisory Board consisting of the president of each faculty and professors named by the Principal. The function of this board would be to consider all problems of the students in relation to the University and the Country. If any specific problem arose, pertaining to one faculty only, the Board would have the power to delegate a committee of that faculty consisting of the Dean, and the President and Vice-Presi-

First of all, as seems most fitting, I would like to thank all those who sponsored my nomination in this present election. During this election period, when interest in student affairs is at its peak, a candidate's platform, according to a popular conception, is wont to suggest to one's mind, a series of innovations or reforms, and their related benefits, which will immediately follow—"If I am elected."

However, new candidates, guided by the achievements of their predecessors, whose work they are slated to continue, usually overcome the temptation to use in their platform, frivolous and rash promises, slogans of free beer, and late passes —and other highly irresistible trivia, found in the Painted Desert. In a word, they are forced by reality, to limit themselves to those things which are essential to, and consistent with, the powers and duties of the office they are seeking.

Despite all limitations however, it is universally accepted that the POLLS OPEN AT 9.00 A.M., CLOSE AT 2.00 P.M. UNLESS DIFFERENTLY STATED ABOVE.

VOTE!

You have not only a right to vote in today's elections, you have a duty. These elections will decide who will handle your student affairs next year.

There is no one who really cannot spare the time to vote. But if you fail to vote, you will have no right to object to the student government you get.

You have seen the platforms—choose carefully the man you think best suited, and vote for him. But above all—VOTE.

Before presenting my platform, I would like to thank all those who nominated me. Should I be elected, I will do my utmost to serve everyone to the fullest extent of my ability.

It is my opinion that the Union should be the place which all students could call "their home downtown." The Union, then, should serve not only as a coordinating centre for student war activity, but should serve in such a way that all clubs and societies would be able to take full advantage of its activities and have an enjoyable time in doing so.

1. With this idea of combining enjoyment and entertainment in conjunction with our War Effort, I propose to sponsor more of such undertakings as the Red Cross Concert and Athletics Festival. In this way, sufficient funds will be cleared to give considerable donations to worthy War Charities.

First, I should like to thank those who have nominated me to the most important student administrative office, President of the Union. I am gratified to accept the nomination, and, in the event of my election will bring all my energies to bear on Student problems.

Business experience indicates that improvements, advantageous to the Student body as a whole, may be effected in the Union. In this regard I instance handling, personally, the administration of an organization with a considerable annual turnover, in the capacity of Sec'y. Treas. Certainly this experience has taught me that I cannot possibly sell you Romanoff Caviar at 29c when in the Embassy you'll do well if you get it at $16.00 per pound! But I do assure you that my constant concern shall be the vigilant supervision of the quality and prices of the Union Cafeteria, catering to the pocket-books and

In contesting the position of President of the McGill Union, I should first like to genuinely thank those who supported my nomination.

Having served as Secretary of the Union during the past year, the duties of the President, as I see them, are twofold. First, he is directly responsible for the running of the Union, and second, through his membership on the Students' Executive Council, he is in a position to act on one or more of the many committees of the Council. I am prepared to carry out these duties to the best of my ability, and to devote all the time necessary to doing a good job.

The Union House Committee of the past year worked out a policy whereby the facilities of the Union were to be made use of to the highest possible degree. As concrete examples of this policy, I may cite the

17 Candidates Will Contest Posts Of Leading Campus Executives In Elections Taking Place Today

Officers Elected Will Assume Positions at Close of Session

Today McGill students will go to the polls to elect officials of the Students' Executive Council, Debating Union, McGill Union, and M.W.S.A.A. When entries of nominations closed 22 names had been submitted for the 12 available positions; five of these were immediately filled by acclamation on receiving a single nomination.

The Presidency of the Students' Society is being contested by Ralph Cohen, B.C.L.1 and John Costigan, B.C.L.2. This is the second consecutive year in which there have been only two nominees for this position, in contrast to the list of five who ran in 1942.

NOMINEES FOR UNION

Three nominations have been submitted for the Presidency of the McGill Union. These are Ben Albert, B.A. 3, Alex Glassman, B. Eng. 2, and Jack L. Pye, B.C.L. 2. Dan Lortie, B.A. 2. has been elected by acclamation to the position of Vice-President of the McGill Union. Richard J. Balfour, B. Eng. 2, Charles Wasserman, B.A. 3, and Geoffrey Yorke-Slader, B. Eng. 3, are contesting the Secretaryship of the McGill Union. George Frank, B. Com. 2, and Bruce Ward, Dent. 2, will run for the post of Representative to the Athletics Board.

Three of the four positions of the McGill Debating Union were filled by acclamtion: David Schwartzman, B.A. 3, was elected President, Harry Krashinsky, B.Eng. 3, was elected Vice-president, and Michael Beaubrun, B.Sc. 1, treasurer. Paul Casgrain, B.C.L.I., and Ursula Milner-White, B.A. 2, will contest the office of Secretary.

CANDIDATES FOR WOMEN'S UNION

Dixie Andrews, B.A. 3, and May Ebbitt, B.A. 3, will contest the Presidency of the Women's Union. Joyce Ault, B.A. 3 was elected Secretary of the Women's Union by acclamation. The Vice-presidency of the Women's Union is not being contested at this time as that post is to be held by Elizabeth Drayton until January of 1945. The position of President of the M.W.S.A.A. will be contested by Margaret Allen, B.A. 3, Merelie Cayford, B.Sc. 3, and Scottie Watson, B.Sc. 3.

Men may vote for all positions except those of the Women's Union and M.W.S.A.A.; women may vote for all positions except those of the McGill Union. Elections will be held by secret ballot between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. today.

The retiring officers of the Students' Society, McGill Union, McGill Debating Union, Women's Union, and M.W.S.A.A. will continue in office until the end of the session (July 1), when their successors take over officially. The newly elected officers will then retain their respective positions for one year from that date.

ARCHITECTS EXECUTIVE

Those elected to the executive of the Architectural Undergraduate Society were Rolf Duschenes as president, Jean C. M. Michaud as vice-president, Sheila P. Baillie as secretary, and Raymond T. Alfleck as treasurer. Glen Carter was elected assistant treasurer, and Peter Oberlander as the architects' representative to The Daily.

Army Notifies Universities

Defence Headquarters last night announced that all Canadian universities have been advised of the decision not to organize a third Canadian Army university course, according to a Canadian Press dispatch received here.

"The question of a further such course for men aged 17 to 21 received the most careful consideration," the announcement said, "but because of the present surplus of reinforcement officers, and secondly because the normal requirements of the technical services are presently secured through the annual output of science graduates from universities, it became necessary to discontinue this special training."

Personnel enrolled on No. 2 Canadian Army university course and now taking the academic portion of their course at universities across Canada will, on completing subsequent military training, appeal before the Officer Selection and Appraisal Board.

It will then be decided whether they go on to officer training at the Brockville, Ont., centre, or allocated to some other training establishment or, alternatively, are allowed their choice of proceeding in the ranks overseas.

Neurological Society Holds Meeting Tonight

Tonight at 5.00 p.m., a meeting of the Montreal Neurological Society will be held in the Lecture Amphitheatre of the Montreal Neurological Institute.

Two cases will be discussed. The first discussion led by Dr. E. Lotspeich and Dr. C. Mushatt will be a clinical pathological problem where a member of the society will be asked to diagnose and discuss the case. The second discussion led by Dr. H. C. Macguire and Dr. F. L. McNaughton, will concern a case of progressive visual failure.

This will probably be one of the shortest speeches in the history of campaigns. I don't intend to waste either your time or my breath in making promises that cannot be kept. No one can predict the events that will occur or the situations that will have to be met in the course of a year. It is therefore worse than useless to propose platforms that might never be carried into effect because of changing situations.

Neither do I intend to reorganize radically the Women's Union. In no instance of history has sudden change or revolution produced any permanent effect. Nothing can be gained that is worthwhile without time, patience and perseverance. The most seemingly sudden changes have not been effected without a great deal of preparation and organization on the part of someone. Secondly, an organization that changes with each administration cannot possibly have the confidence or the respect of those they represent or those with whom they deal.

May I express my sincere thanks to all those who nominated me for president of the Women's Union and state my pledge that should I be elected, I shall work in every way possible to prove worthy of their trust.

In promoting the "social, cultural and recreational interests of the women students" and encouraging "understanding and comradeship among its members", the Women's Union must, in my opinion, be an ever-changing, ever-growing organization. It must be flexible — to answer the new needs that arise at the beginning each new college term; and it must be creative—to become, by virtue of its work, an increasingly more valuable part of the life of every woman student.

As your representative to the university and to the Students' Executive Council, I should do everything in my power to work in cooperation with them and in your best interests for greater understanding and greater mutual aid.

It is also to be hoped that the

Engineers To Elect Officers After Meeting

There will be a meeting of the Engineering and Commerce Undergraduate Societies today in Room 37 of the Engineering Building at 5 p.m. They will debate on the subject: "Resolved that it is better to have loved and lost, than never to have at all." After the debate the Engineering Debating Society will elect its officers for the coming year.

Commerce will uphold the affirmative and will have Morris Cohen and Morris Miller as his debators. Keith Cumming and Jimmy Hyndeman, representing the Engineering Faculty, will take the negative side. Mr. John Dando and Geoffrey Slader will act as judges.

The positions to be filled in the Engineer's Debating Society are those of the president, vice-president, secretary-treasurer, and publicity representative. The vice-president and the publicity representative have been chosen by acclamation, and are Ray Assleck and

McGill Debaters Beat MacDonald

Affirmative of Topic "Socialized Medicine" Takes Decision

McGill was victorious for the first time in two seasons in a debate held with Macdonald College last night on the subject, "Resolved that medicine in Canada be state controlled." The debate took place at Macdonald College and was McGill's first out-of-town debate this season.

McGill upheld the affirmative and was represented by Winston Mahabir, fourth year Honour student in Sociology, and David Schwartzman, third year Honours student in Economics and president-elect of the Debating Union. Oswald Gonzales and Arthur Poland debated on the negative side for Macdonald.

McGill, in expressing the affirmative, used several different arguments. The most important of these were health as a community concern, the failure of private practice, the poor's inability to call a doctor, and the lack of doctors in the rural areas. Macdonald's main arguments on the negative side were the evils of bureaucracy in state control, that state control

Elections Today

Today the students will be asked to cast their ballots for the main executive positions on the campus. They have an opportunity to read the platforms of the candidates for the presidencies of the Students' Society, and the two Unions, which have been reprinted on the front page of The Daily. We hope that the magnitude of the vote will not indicate a complete lack of interest in the outcome of the elections.

Although the number of votes gained by each of the candidates is never available for publication, it is up to each member of the student body to signify a reasonable preference for one candidate, to ensure that the person he considers best qualified for the job be elected. If he does not cast his ballot, there is every possibility that an unworthy candidate, one who represents a small group, or who is interested in personal aggrandizement rather than the welfare of the student body, will be elected. There exists no method of preventing such a candidate from running, for he forfeits nothing; and since the percentage of votes he gains is secret, he does not lose face by an overwhelming defeat.

Due to wartime conditions, the number of candidates running for these positions is smaller than in former years. This is an encouragement for persons who are desirious of the position, but who are unqualified to fulfill their duties competently due to inexperience.

Although Tuesday's election meeting was very poorly attended, indicating a considerable lack of student interest in the election, we hope that the platforms have been, or will be, read, since they will give some indication of the ability of the candidates, and of their personal characteristics.

Were it not for the enthusiastic support of the Athletics Festival, the I.S.S., the Red Cross Concert, and lately the Arts and Science Hop, we would be inclined to blame the student body for apathy. These events have demonstrated, however, that the student will, if offered something worthwhile, lend unqualified support. The answer is that there has not been a meeting of the Students' Society this year, either upon request of the students, or by order of the president of the Students' Society. This may be the result of bad management or of wartime conditions necessitating a greater application to study. Whatever the cause, it has resulted in a poor appreciation of the work of the Executive Council, and a lack of interest in the members of the Council, their work, and their relationship to the student body. Since the Freshman class has never witnessed a Society meeting, it can not be expected to appreciate the worries or the works of the executives.

The important consideration, however, is that everyone should vote, and know the man for whom they are voting. It is simple to make a mark on the ballot, but the effect of irresponsible voting may be far-reaching.

The Rake's Progress

The Case of the Empty Bottle (cont'd).

"G-g-goodness g-g-gug-racious, mercy sakes alive!" expostulated the Owl aghast. "W-w-wh-what the . . .?"

"Ah, yes woe!" replied the Dead One dismally, to the tune of sundry gulpings. "Have you any more for a poor parched soul?"

"Why, of course", said the Owl, generously diluting the next slug with Coksipola. "But who-what-why-how . . .?"

"Nay, of no import, woe", answered the Marble-Clad One. "A right merry drink thou hast, ecod! Fellow named Longwhistle, class of '61, used to make stuff like that!!"

"Glory be!" expostulated the Owl profanely. "Great-Uncle Gus!" (Then, cautiously) "Is that how you got here?"

"Nay, not at all", snorted the other indignantly. "Might've lived to a hundred and forty like Gus did, woe! Small world, strike me—Gus's Grand-nephew!" The tomb-top tilted to an alarming angle and a hollow eyesocket peered searchingly at the Owl. "And just as dumb-looking, too", he added, by way of a compliment.

The Owl grinned proudly, recalling how Great-Uncle Gus, at the tender age of a hundred-and-thirty-two, had eloped with the prettiest freshette in R.V.C. (or Queene Anne Colleyge, or whatever the h . . . it was called in those days)—but had died of an apoplectic fit eight years later, when the McGill Senate had removed the spitoon from the Engineering Common Room, wherein he used to while away the hours between 9 A.M. and 10.30 A.M. (at which hour, by an equally strange coincidence, the Peel Tavern was said to open!) An occasional lurch down to the Old Age Pension Bureau kept him in fine shape (and in funds!) up to the day of his death: and to this day (the Owl solemnly avers), there is a silver-mounted slide-rule somewhere in the archives of the Engineering Bldg., whereon Great-uncle Gus had computed the exact amount of beer one gets gypped out of in the empty necks of beer-bottles—phenomenal calculations for those dark days!

"Ah yes!" he implicitly agreed. "A noble fellow, both a scholar and a gentleman—even though he was an engineer!"

The other had by this time withdrawn his rattly anatomy from the cold confines of his two by four, and was perched up beside the Owl, earnestly assisting in the pouring. "Yes, woe!" he announced dismally, his ectoplasm quivering with gusto as Jungle Juice dribbled down his vertebrae. "Son, I am doomed to hang around Mount Royal for ever and a day, if someone does not avenge me. I, Conrad Cornflap, (oh sad woe!), died a hideous death the night of the Plumbers' Brawl in 1862, when Aristotle O'Bottle (Theology '62)—the notorious temperance divine—spiked my crock with Epsom Salts! O'Bottle is now president and owner of the mighty Rotguttersnipen Breweries Ltd. (manufacturers of the dread "Houp-la" Beer!)—and has hitherto escaped entirely the clutches of the law! Oh, how fine 'twould be if a young man of your caliber could take up the cudgel and bring this villain to heel!"

Deeply moved by this discourse, and to say the least, flattered—the Owl blinked pensively. Knowing full well that the O'Bottle Foundation had just donated a tremendous lab. to the Engineering Faculty, to be devoted entirely to brewing research—the Owl found it hard to convince himself. As his pin-head brain bounced around distractedly in its vacuum, the late Mr. Cowflap made up his mind for him.

"I perceive your doubts, woe", quoth he, "and must betimes allay them ere they rancour against me. The formula for Houp-la came from my lab book, which the poking O'Bottle snooped through, while conducting my burial service. The Powers that Be witness my suffering, and chide thee into avenging my harrowed soul!" With these sad words (and having made sure no more Jungle Juice was around), Conrad Cowflap popped back under his slab, leaving the Owl to permutate and combinate over the momentous conversations so recently held. As the cock crew, and the airplane light went out in the U. of M. tower, the Owl suddenly leapt to his feet with all the energy the Jungle Juice would allow (and promptly fell flat upon his face, bruising his flaming proboscis and shattering his spectacles!) A plan had been hatched: a course resolved upon: and Conrad Cowflap, (Eng. '62) was about to be avenged!!

Music Notes

On Tuesday evening the Little Symphony presented its sixteenth concert. On this occasion Bernard Naylor, the conductor, chose a program consisting entirely of works by modern composers. This was yet another example of Mr. Naylor's initiative and lack of temerity in departing from the conventional. It is an admirable venture to strive like this, every once in a while, to jog the music-goer out of his stagnating aversion to hearing something new. The program undoubtedly met with varying, and often frigid, receptions from the audience; but there were just as undoubtedly a portion of the listeners whom the music impressed favourably.

Before going further, we will admit that the music was new to us—this so that it may be understood that the opinions expressed are only tentative and liable to change after further acquaintance with these scores. For this reason, too, a searching analysis of the music and its performance will not be attempted.

Only the strings took part in the program. The opening selection was Warlock's "Serenade," which proved to be pleasing in its own way. Suk's "Meditation on an old Czech Carol, 'Svaty Vaclave'," possessed a compelling religious solemnity which was set off by unusual orchestral effects.

The best item of the evening was Miaskovsky's "Sinfonietta, Op. 32, No. 2." Throughout its three movements the many solo passages were well performed by Maurice Onderet, solo violin, Lucien Robert, viola solo, and by Jean Belland, whose work on solo 'cello was particularly praiseworthy. The orchestra was sympathetic to the moods of the music, and played with noteworthy tone and integration.

The "Five Variants of 'Dives and Lazarus'," by Vaughan Williams and the cacophonous (to many ears) "Toccata," by Willy Burkhard, completed this out-of-the way concert.

The Soloist

The parson ceases prayer;
The church folk take their seat;
The organ softly plays;
The soloist's on her feet.
Ondrilla, the famous singer stands with grace,
Amidst the quiet light of the sacred place.

She sings a tune of Handel;
The melody is rich
With thrilling tone and thought,
And mounting up in pitch
She opens wide her mouth in long "Amen,"
Swinging up the scale—higher—then

An overtone! A cough!
A silence! Ah! the exit
Occurs with swift surprise;
A deepened hush reflects it.
The nervous parson rises from his place
With weakened knees, perplexed and blushing face.

So strange a circumstance—
All wondered what was wrong
But one. Ondrilla's husband
Hearing the evensong,
Smiled a hidden smile with solemn face;
He knew her teeth had shifted out of place.

Sheaf.

Rain in the Night

Missing someone is like standing on a sodden street
And watching the light from cheerier windows
Struggle through the night rain.
Its a biting pain and a gnawing hunger,
Only worse.
Who would care if all the world dissolved in rain
And ran its aimless course along the gutter.

Faces, dark and lean and gray
All strangely touched by some despairing brush,
All staring out into nothingness.
Behind them—only other faces.

To be alone is to join them
Drifting silently through the night.

Red Swimmers Win In Telegraphic Meet Held Against Varsity

McGill Amasses 33 Points To Overcome Toronto Total Fullerton, N. Mahon Lead Team

McGill swimmers won the telegraphic meet from the University of Toronto, last night by amassing a point total of thirty-three against Varsity's twenty-four. Besides winning the 200-yard relay, Redmen came through to place first in the 100-yard breast stroke, and 50-yard free-style. Varsity copped the initial spot in the 300-yard medley relay, the 100-yard back stroke, and the 100-yard free-style, but McGill gained their margin of victory from second and third place points.

The fastest of the McGill swimmers, was Dick Fullerton, who took the 50-yard free-style, in 26.5 seconds, and placed third in the 100-yard free-style, to notch six points, while Ned Mahon garnered five points in winning the breast-stroke, and Norm Ashton accounted for four, with a second and a third.

Points were awarded on a basis of five for first, three for second, and one for third. In the 300-yd. relay, the first team gained six points, and the runner-up three, while in the 200-yard relay, points were eight and four.

Wrestlers Fight For Championship Friday Evening

Gym to Be Scene Of McGill Grunt And Groan Classic

For the past few weeks the members of the wrestling club have been busy training for the coming individual weight championships. Under Coach Saxon's able direction the team is gradually being whipped into shape.

This Friday night, March 3, the results of a year's intensive training will be decided, when the individual championships are contested. In the 145 lb. class Sherwin Raymond, Med I, will be matched against Carlos Calderon, Eng. III. Both of these boys have shown up very well in their practice and should provide a hard-fought match. Raymond hails from Amherst College where he did a great deal of wrestling. Calderon has been on the team for the past few years and has developed into a first class wrestler.

The second match, the 155 lb. class, will be between Ronnie Garside and manager Joe Sabbath. Both of these boys have had several years' experience in the grunt and groan game. Garside obtained most of his previous practice south of the border at Cornell University and Y.M.C.A. Sabbath on the other hand has gained most of his experience at McGill and at the different Montreal Y's. It will be remembered that these boys staged an ex-

Championship Events to Include Track, Gymnasts and Badminton

Friday night will see a lot of action in the McGill sport scene as competition takes place in more sports than can be counted on the digits of both hands of the normal human being. Included on the schedule are a number of track and field events. These include the 50 yard sprint and hurdles. Anyone who can run the potato race in 15 seconds, or can do the fence climb in 5 seconds, or can broad jump 8½ feet, or can throw the medicine ball 40 feet, is pretty sure of placing high in these events. The first ten score for their respective faculties, while Athletic Awards will be given to the winners. Next Wednesday, March 8, the field events will be concluded when the 440 yards, mile run, high jump and relay are run off.

Most of the gymnasts are ready for action, and those who are competing tomorrow night will start doing their stuff at 7.45 p.m. Among these are Pete Layne, Allen Scott, Merrill Stalker, J. H. Birkett, Bob Findlay, Andy Speirs, Hy Hershman, Don Mathews, Colin Campbell, Rene Hebert, Eric Fischer, Rodolfo Gurdian, Joe Sabbath and John Harris. Any others who would like to compete may present themselves with the others. The events are as follows: Parallel Bars, Side Horse, Vaulting Box, Mats, Flying Rings, Horizontal Bar, Fence Vault and Rope Climb.

The men's singles Badminton match will bring together Cullen of Eng. II, and Stubbs of Eng. I. The doubles tilt will be between the Engineers and Meds for the championship, and the Krashinsky brothers will represent the former, while Burris and Goodman will play for the latter. The singles winner will receive the Dyer Trophy, while the doubles champs will be awarded with the Thompson Trophy. The final squash playoff game will bring together two Medical students, Bates and Schram, who have survived the elimination tourney that was played during the last two weeks.

Boxing Prelims Scheduled for Tonight

Today will see the official beginning of Championship Week at McGill as the boxing preliminaries get under way in preparation for the finals tomorrow night. The initial tilt will start at 5.15 p.m. tonight in the B.W. & F. room, and all contestants have been asked to appear on time so that the various bouts can be run off as quickly as possible.

There will be preliminaries in all classes, including the following weights:—118 lbs., 125 lbs., 135 lbs., 145 lbs., 155 lbs., 165 lbs., 175 lbs., and heavyweight. This is the first year that most of the entries have actively competed in boxing, so it is expected that a lot of evenly matched fights will take place.

It has been announced that boxers may weigh in any time during the day prior to their first match, and they have been asked to see Em Orlick at the Athletic Office in this regard. Finals will be held tomorrow night starting at 7.45 p.m. in the B. W. & F. room.

Among those men entered in the tournament are the following: 125 lbs.: Clayton Procope and Eddie Lawland; 135 lbs.: John Heney and Sid Dakin; 145 lbs.: Les Darragh; 155 lbs.: Norman Halford, Graham Powell, Kent Boucher, Eric Jackalin and Ritchie Ward; 165 lbs.: Ron

Weightlifters To Meet In Historical Contest

Charles J. Walker, coach of the McGill Iron Club has announced that there will be a weight lifting meet at the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium tonight starting at 8.00 p.m.

This will be the first time in history that a weightlifting contest has been held at McGill University. The contest is the result of popular demand by the students, who since the acquisition of Charles Walker, "The Man with the Iron Neck", have beseiged the Daily office for information about him and his teachings. Charles Walker is widely recognized as one of the world's finest authorities on scientific body building, and in the short time that he has been at McGill he has literally performed miracles.

In a sport in which it is generally agreed that it takes years to become proficient, Walker has in the space of four months already developed an outstanding athlete in the person of Milton McDowell. Although McDowell has only been under Walker's tutelage for a short time, his build can compare favourably with the best. He will compete this

Pro Ball Club Tries Out Ex-McGill Student

Onetime Plumber Reports to New York Giants

Word was received here last night that "Hustling" Herman Colletta, former student of Engineering at McGill University will try out with the New York Giants baseball club this spring at Lakewood, N.J. If Colletta makes good it will be the first time in history that a student of McGill has made the grade in professional baseball.

Colletta was born and brought up in Montreal. He is a product of the teeming west side. He attended West Hill High School and D'Arcy McGee High where he starred in football and track. A ten second man on the cinder path, he was elusive and hard to stop on the gridiron. His specialty, however, was forward passing. He was one of the first high school football players to make extensive use of the forward pass. He was unexcelled in this department for accuracy and distance. This is just what one would expect form a man who is now considered to have a stronger throwing arm than most professional baseball players.

While he was still attending high school Colletta played for the old Columbus nine in Atwater Park League, which is the fastest amateur league in Canada. His outstanding ability quickly attracted favorable attention of big-time scouts. His next two seasons were spent playing for the Lakeshore Blue Devils in the mining country in Northern Ontario. The Blue Devils are a semi-pro team playing in an outlaw-league. They play a brand of ball equivalent to that of a class B team. Colletta was able in this way to earn his way through college.

When war broke out, Colletta was one of the first to volunteer for duty with the Royal Canadian Air Force. However fate destined him never to see action. He was seriously injured in a crack up and after spending six months in the hospital received an honorable discharge. Now, a year and a half later he is getting his big chance with the New York Giants.

Comms Whip Plumbers In Volleyball Fixtures

The Commerce Volleyball team continued on their unbeaten path yesterday afternoon when they defeated the fourth year Engineers in two close games. As a result the Comms have entered the final playoff series in which the other two teams will be No. 9 RCAF, and a squad from Macdonald College.

Both teams were at full strength for the encounter, and while the play was for a great part of the time touch and go, the accountants had too much in the clutches, and could not be headed. The first game saw the plumbers take a quick two point lead which was just as quickly nullified by the Comms. From here on the play was even, with each team running up successive leads of one or two points. However towards the end the Commerce squad was able to get ahead by three points, which provided the margin for victory in the 15-12 count.

The next game started off in the same manner as the first, with the Engineers once again darting ahead by a couple of points. However the similarity ended right there, as Commerce racked up a 9-4 lead in short order. Led by their two tall men, Trigg and Frank, they were able to capitalize on some sloppy playing by the

MOC to Sponsor Skating Party

Following up the successful informal atmosphere of the Park Slide earlier this year, the MOC will sponsor an evening of skating and dancing next Tuesday night at the Union.

Sports movies, never yet seen on the campus, will be shown as an added attraction to give weary legs a rest before the Union resounds with the strains from the continent's most popular bands.

In true Leap Year style everyone is urged to come stag and couples, though not excluded, will be frowned upon. A nominal fee of 25 cents per person will be collected at the Union door. Later in the evening refreshments will be served free of charge.

Weather permitting, novelty races will be run on the ice. The evening is scheduled to begin at 8:30, the movies being held an hour later.

Feminine Fencers Fight For Fame at RVC Tonite

The coeds are keeping in the spirit of things this week, as they have arranged for the fencing playoffs to take place tonight. Scene of the matches will be the lower gym at R.V.C., where the fems will gather tonight at 7 o'clock to compete for the championship of McGill.

George Tully, fencing coach, will be on hand to referee the bouts, which will be of five hits each. The girls present will be gathered into either one or two pools, depending on how many are there. Each girl will compete against every other girl in the pool, and the one who wins the most bouts will be declared the fencing champion of this year. She will be awarded the Junior M.

Since most of this year's group are beginners, no girl need be afraid to come because of lack of practice. Tonight's matches will offer every one an excellent opportunity to acquire that very practice. With this idea in mind, it is expected that there will be a long queue of girls trying to get into the lower gym tonight at seven, for they also know that they cannot all be losers.

Plumbers Present New Constitution

Large Attendance Of Students Noted At Annual Meeting

The main feature of the annual meeting of the Engineering Undergraudate Society held yesterday was the presentation of the proposed new constitution. The main idea of the constitution is to unify and correlate the various committees, and to cope with this a larger executive is proposed. No vote was taken on the idea, but comment and criticism was invited by the authors, after careful thought on the part of members.

A good part of the meeting, which had a large turnout of society members, was spent on a motion concerning prize essays. A suggested amendment was voted down, and the motion concerning $25 prizes for the two best summer essays in the third and fourth years was duly passed.

Various society and club reports showed a successful year, both as to trips and industries concerning different branches of engineering and to social activities. The architects' representative remarked that the close cooperation of the two societies was gratifying, and he said that he hoped that it would continue in the future.

The treasurer's report showed a profit of about $150, which pleased the members attending, and when outstanding debts were paid off the year will be a financial success.

In his report, prior to retirement, President Jim Maclure urged the society to give more cooperation to their executive, both as to increased attendance at meetings and constructive rather than destructive criticism.

Appreciation was shown to eight members of the society for work done during the year when they were asked to represent the engineering undergraduates at the forthcoming grads-undergrads banquet. A motion was made and unanimously passed that the society bear the expense of the banquet for those named. A vote of thanks was also given to two members and also to the Phi Epsilon Alpha Society for cooperation during the past year.

The meeting was then turned over to the incoming president, Ken Park, who adjourned the body.

electors are entitled to demand that a candidate make a statement as to his views, and to outline the program he will initiate and support if he is successful. I will gladly comply with this convention, by setting out the main points of my proposed agenda.

A) War Council

The responsibilities and obligations of a student attending university during war time, is the uppermost thought in all our minds. As the war rages on and enters its concluding stages, our united effort in playing our part, in Canada's war effort, will become accordingly more urgent. Great work has already been done by the War Council, and the student body at large. Contributions to the Red Cross, and other war drives, have been most praiseworthy. Our quotas must continue to be filled. An all-out effort should be made to increase them. I will wholeheartedly devote myself to this end.

B) Student Affairs

It is my intention to employ every possible method to increase contact between the Executive Council and the Students. Publicity of its activities through the "DAILY," closer contact with student representatives, will help to accomplish this objective. This drive will be most effective, if coupled with the Freshmen "Welcoming Program." Every Freshman should be completely informed of the jurisdiction and function of all student organizations on the campus, as soon as possible on becoming a member of the Students' Society. A lively interest in university affairs and student government is intimately related with the role we students are to play in the future of this nation.

C) Freshmen Reception

The welcoming of new students to a university, is a duty towards whic hno effort should be spared. In the past years, this program has been successful, and the spirit of the University is proportionately good. However, greater innovations are possible and should be introduced. Great traditions are fostered in this way. It is not mere chance that this or that particular university is noted for its great college spirit. It is usually a characteristic of these same universities, that they have an elaborate frosh program.

D) The Sports Program

As you all know, the presidency carries with it a seat on the Athletics Council. During the past year great strides were made in encouraging more and more students to participate in sports activities. It still can be greatly expanded during the coming year. Many new ideas were injected into the program, and had a very successful start, and should not be abandoned. The enthusiasm shown during the last year by the students was very gratifying to those in charge. I pledge myself to continue this good work and help bring this enlarged sports program to its full completion.

However, I am of the opinion that the support given to our representative teams could be greatly improved. This is a development which I would like to see during the coming year. The greatest step towards this end was the Sports Festival; more events of a like nature will be the best antidote to a flagging college spirit.

E) Post-War Planning

One item which has not had to be considered by Students' Councils in the past, but which may become very important during the coming year, is the probable return to college of a large number of discharged servicemen.

The plans for these men should be considered and made beforehand. I propose to do as much along this line as circumstances will allow. It will undoubtedly be the first problem which we must solve in our post-war planning.

The above outlines only a fraction of the activities in which the President takes part. His administration is by no means arbitrary. While serving on the Executive Council I realized that the President is not free to perform miracles. The most important factor, to my mind, is not what he proposes to do, but how effectively he will carry out what the student body would like him to do. His qualities of leadership and initiative are ultimately judged according to this standard.

The President represents the student body before the public and the University authorities. His ability to fulfil this high trust adequately is an important factor in his qualifications, and this should be carefully considered by the students.

I fully realize the responsibility that the President has towards the student body. If you should place your confidence in me in this coming election, I promise that I will carry out to the best of my ability the sentiments I have just expressed, in conformity with the ideals and interests of the Students of McGill University.

Reorganization must be gradual so that advantages already gained will not be lost in the process. In other words it is only by steady application of purpose that an organization can finally reach its goal of respect and weight.

However, there is one thing that I do think should be remedied, that is the situation between the executive and the rest of the students. Too few know the workings of the Union, and when they become Juniors, they are completely in the dark with regard to the problems they would have to face and what would be expected of them should they be elected to this body. It is this situation that should be changed. Students should have more opportunities of learning the duties of the executive of the Union, so that capable people will be prepared to take these positions with a fuller realization of what is expected of them. This I firmly believe would be accomplished by having the Executive Staff on the Daily recognize the Women's Union as the only representative body for the women students at McGill. Not only that, but articles for the Union, the voice of the women of the campus of McGill, should be entitled to the same consideration or even more, as any other club or organization on the campus. Secondly, the executive of the various years should be in closer contact not only with the union but with their own years.

In closing, I wish to say that if I am elected I will do my utmost to carry out my duties and face the problems that will confront me to the greatest possible advantage of the students whom I am representing.

dent of each year.

The General Advisory Board would consider such vital problems as these:

1—The latest National Selective Service Regulations.
2—The change of courses.
3—The speed up of courses in certain faculties.
4—Grants for needy students by the government. The student would repay when working after the war.

The General Advisory Board, democratically elected, would receive all legal power. No more will students write to the Editor of the Daily in hope of clarification—the General Advisory Board will state its conclusions, final and without appeal.

2—Military Training.

If Military Training next Year is of a similar nature to that carried out during the last four years, there are a few problems which students would like altered. The President of the Students' Society has no power in this connection as supervision is under the Department of Defence, but the President of the Students' Society can make recommendations. I propose to look into the grievances of the different faculties and I will do all in my power to present any legitimate grievance to the military authorities.

3—Clubs, Organizations and Societies

My wholehearted support will be given in the matter of working for closer cooperation between all Campus Clubs and the Students' Council. Those organizations which provide an opportunity for Students to hear outstanding speakers, those organizations which provide free democratic discussion on vital problems in various fields regardless of race, colour or creed, will receive my continued support while in office.

4—Co-Operative Book Store

In my travels across Canada, I took the opportunity to visit many of our fellow Canadian Universities. All were proud of their cooperative book-stores where students bought new books at a saving of 25 to 50%; we at McGill have the need and I propose to set up a committee immediately, with the authorization of the University authorities to work on the problem, so that by the time the new term begins there will exist at last a co-operative book store.

5—Inter Faculty Sports.

The return of inter-faculty sports this year, after a low log, should be continued. The war effort requires physically fit young men and women, and there is no better way to get relaxation and recreation, than by inter-faculty sport competitions. School spirit was considerably revived by these sports competitions between the different faculties on the Campus, and next year let us hope, that inter-collegiate athletics will be back also.

6—Cafeteria.

The many letters sent to the Editor complaining of the poor food in the Cafeteria—the stale cake, the sour milk, the mouldy bread — would not have been written if there had not been a justified excuse. The Cafeteria's main object is service and any complaint should be looked into immediately by the Council.

Support of War Effort on Campus.

Along with the War Council I shall support any organization on the Campus which sets as its goal a greater Student War Effort. We must continue to give blood, to send books, to collect clothing, and to raise funds in all ways to help, as we have done in the past, such worthy causes as the Red Cross, the Federated Charities, and the International Student Service.

In conclusion my policy shall always be one of favouring more student democracy. If any vital problem arises during my year of leadership, I shall call a meeting of the Student Society.

There are probably some matters which warrant a more detailed discussion but in a platform of this type it is obviously impossible to discuss these things fully. Moreover, I do not feel that a candidate for this office is in a position to make any election promises other than the promise to interpret the feelings of the student body to the best of his ability, and to give to the office all the energy and enthusiasm at his disposal.

way opened this year through the University of Montreal concert in honor of McGill and through the Athletics Festival will be further travelled next year and the years following toward inter-university friendship and collaboration.

Women's War Services

Aim: To give greater unity and utility to the present war service program for the women students. At the moment, a student will take two courses in her first year, two entirely different courses in her second year, and in her third and fourth years if she attempts to substitute some practical community or hospital work for this haphazard "taking of courses", she finds that the war studies of the two earlier years have scarcely qualified her for the work. Instead of this futile waste of energy, each year should see the building on a foundation made in the freshman year, so that the final result will be students who are competent in one field of war work and who can feel that they actually have something to contribute to the needs of the community. Again, it seems that is the W.S.P.W. were sufficiently well organized now in war time, it could be carried on after peace comes as a small but significant contribution of university students towards the social work of the post-war world.

War Council

Aim: to support the work of the War Council in all its projects. . . . in the I.S.S., in the book campaigns for the Forces, in the clothing drives for the needy people of Europe, and in any efforts it will make to destroy isolationism and create a dynamic interest and desire to work towards victory, peace and social security.

M.W.S.A.A.

Aim: To support the new revival of interest in inter-collegiate sports and to help any efforts of the M.W.S.A.A. to give that interest concrete form. . . . such as the recent Athletics Festival.

Freshman Reception

Aim: To study the work and suggestions of the Freshman Reception committees in the past in order to see how the Freshmen can be introduced to university life without making them feel they must subject all personal individuality and initiative to the apparently all-important object of becoming "one of the others."

In pursuit of the above, to make a definite attempt to find out the interests of each Freshman and to make it as easy as possible for her to find the groups that share those interests with her. If this can be done, it will mean that each new student can slip naturally into the environment where she will be happiest and where she can accomplish the most both for herself and for the whole student body.

The Arts

Aim: To suport and increase wherever possible the present cultural program of the Women's Union. The music concerts, the art and photography exhibits, the clubs that depend to some extent for financial support on the Women's Union . . . all of these shall be continued and added to. I am particularly interested in making an effort to bring outstanding men and women of letters to speak to the students, and thus form a companion interest to the music and art work already being done.

And finally, in all that I do I shall endeavor to increase mutual understanding and respect among all the organizations on the campus and between the university and outside groups, regardless of their nationality, religion, wealth and individual differences.

running of four Union House Informals during the year, making available to the students a dance every two weeks at a dollar per couple. Secondly, the Union House Committee participated successfully in the very popular Freshman Reception Week by staging its annual smoker. These various events are the sort of thing the Union should encourage, and if elected, it will be my intention to cooperate with the other members of the House Committee in instituting an equally active program next year.

The need for generally improving service in the Union Cafeteria and Grill is a pressing one, but one which must be governed by the difficulties under which all organizations are working at the present time. However, certain improvements can and must be made, and among them I cite the shortage of cloak-room facilities at noon-time, a defect which must be remedied as soon as possible.

As a means of prolonging the life of magazines in the Reading Room, covers for several magazines have been on order with stationers for several weeks now, and this policy should be continued next year provided such supplies are available.

Finally, it is my hope to cooperate fully with the executives of all campus clubs and societies for whose use the Union was principally designed.

stomachs of the men of McGill.

The most pressing need on the Campus today is a revival of the College Spirit—oomph, if you like it that way! Seriously, the old pre-war 'McGill or be damned' feeling is definitely missing. The Athletic Union has made gallant efforts to revive it despite seemingly overwhelming odds. Unfortunately, except for occasional flurries, it remains dormant. The centre of Student activity should be the Union. Obviously, the restrictive influence of war must be compensated for by positive action in accelerating student social activity. With the cooperation of the other members of the Union House Committee I shall endeavour to foster more college dances—social activities—in general to make the Union worthy of its function—your Club.

Another thing—popular literature will be available in the Union—magazines like the Readers' Digest, Esquire, Time and so on. But, in addition, I shall also prescribe an effective method to make them stay in the Union—so that they may be available to all at all times.

2. I intend to make each Union House Dance into an evening of good entertainment, with "snappy" orchestras plus "an added something."

3. Through an active Freshman Reception period, I plan to show the Frosh the advantages of the Union so that they will be conscious of the part played by the Union on the campus.

4. I will also endeavor to have an efficiently managed Cafeteria and Grill Room.

5. Lastly, I would continue the recently set-up committee to deal with confliction of dates of major campus events.

Although the President of the Union is an administrative position, he sits on the Student Executive Council and in that capacity I would attempt to forward a policy that would prove beneficial to the entire student body.

evening, and there is no doubt that he will set records that will not be broken at McGill for a long time.

This meet is open to all students. The lifters will be divided into the following classes:—bantamweight, featherweight, lightweight, middleweight, light heavyweight, and heavyweight. This means that each man will be lifting against others of approximately the same body weight. The contest itself will consist of five lifts—press, clean and jerk, snatch, bench press, and the two arm curl. In addition, if any man feels that he is good enought to set a record in some other lift, he may make the attempt. Entry blanks may be obtained from Em Orlick.

hibition match at the recent Athletics Festival.

The third and final match will be between McGill's own heavyweight —Alfrido Bequilliard—and Adolphe Dresser of the Central Y.M.C.A. Bequilliard is in his first year at McGill and has shown remarkable progress.

These matches are the Wrestling Club's contribution to the program of Championship Week. If all the events of the week are as full of interest as these mat mixes promise to be, Championship Week will surely be a success.
